

Simulation as a Teaching Tool

This four-day intensive course, offered in partnership with Boston USA based, Center for Medical Simulation, will be offered for the first time in the UK at the internationally-known and award-winning SAIL Centre in the heart of central London.

Using a combination of immersive simulation, large group lectures, large and small group discussion, and focused small group tutorial support, the course allows participants to network with and learn from colleagues, while practicing their skills with some of the most well-known simulation faculty in the world.
